NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Gold at New York yesterday closed at 114.

—At New York cotton closed strong and active, chiefly for export; sales 9000 bales at 15 1/2.

—The Liverpool cotton market closed active; uplands 1/2, Orleans 3/4; sales 15,000 bales.

—Since the war began suicides are said to have ceased in Paris, and the morgue is empty.

—Russia is said to be in the field now for the purchase of vessels and warlike stores in this country.

—The Census Bureau at Washington, having got through the bulk of its labor, the force of clerks is to be reduced.

—Flesh-colored gloves are the latest fashion. The advantage is that at a little distance no one notices that you've got them on.

—A Chicago bootblack has made the trip to San Francisco in forty-five days, riding on the cars till put off, which was at every station.

—It has been officially ascertained in Washington that the letter for the recall of Minister Motley is now on its way to England. With it shall have been received by him, he will of course be regarded as the representative of this government at the British Court.

—Chief Justice Chase, it is reported, has expressed the determination not to resume his duties on the bench of the Supreme Court in a less time than a year from now. He will take a vacation for rest and recuperation. In order to effect a perfect restoration of his health.

—The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald telegraphs that the friends of General Sickles are talking about him for the English mission, and that it is believed he would accept a transfer from Madrid to London. In official circles he is regarded as the ablest man in the diplomatic service.

—The New York Stock Exchange has bought the building in which it holds its sessions from the building association which erected it, for $75,000, while it cost $25,000 to build. The building was contracted for before the great advance in labor and materials which followed the issue of paper money.

—One hundred and fifty Swiss immigrants passed through Lynchburg, Virginia, on Friday, the 19th instant, on the way to Water Valley, Mississippi. It is said that five thousand more are expected from Switzerland within the next three months, all of whom design locating at Water Valley.

—In the counties surrounding Alexandria, Virginia, a great many immigrants have lately purchased land, and are making wonderful improvements. The tide of immigration continues. Among the persons who have lately purchased land and settled in the vicinity are numbers from Pennsylvania, New York, England and Maryland.

—The New York Times has published a long and interesting article on the Republican party, because of its advocacy of free trade principles. The specific allegation is that it openly advocates an alliance between the bolting Republicans and Democrats in the next House, by which the organization of Congress shall pass to the opposition.

—A Japanese pillow is a curiosity in its way. It is nothing but a rocker of a cradle, broad enough to stand alone, with a semi-circular depression on the upper side. The Japanese lie at full length on the floor, place, not their head, but their neck in the crescent-shaped hollow on the upper side of the pillow, and rock themselves to sleep in a few minutes.

—Bishop Potter has forbidden the celebration of the boy's communion as a private mass at St. Saviour's, New York, when the priest is the only communicant. Father Bradley has, therefore, asked for the formation of a band of thirty persons, one of whom shall commune with him each day, as "the bishop of the diocese had forbidden him to sacrifice to his dear Lord alone."

—A dispatch from New York says that a proposed informal conference of the revenue reformers called to meet in that city next week, and to which Wm. O'Connell Bryant, General John A. Logan, David A. Wells, General Frank Blair, Horace White, editor of the Chicago Tribune, and Stanton Marble, of the World, were invited, is likely to fall through. General Logan has not responded, and some of those mentioned know nothing about it.

—A gentleman just arrived from Little Rock, Arkansas, estimates that there are twenty-five thousand acres of cotton standing in that State, and that it cannot be until midwinter, owing to the absolute impossibility of securing labor. The price offered is a cent and a quarter to a cent and a half per pound for picking. A good hand will make from fifteen hundred to eighteen hundred pounds a week, and the best field hands are said to make considerably more than the maximum.

There are some Chinese there and in the adjacent regions, and they are much liked and very industrious.

—The eleven States that in 1861 declared their secession from the Union, had in 1860 a population of 9,104,321. By the census of 1870 their aggregate population is 10,010,557. This shows an increase, notwithstanding the destruction of life caused by the war. The border States of Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri, which had in 1870 an aggregate of 3,951,254 souls. Death of the Hon. F. D. Richardson.

By a letter from ex-Governor Manning to our fellow-citizen, Colonel John E. Carew, the sad intelligence reached the city yesterday morning of the death of Judge F. D. Richardson, which took place at the house of Governor Manning, in Clarendon, on Sunday evening, the 20th instant.

The son of a distinguished father, the Hon. John S. Richardson—for many years one of the Associate Judges of the State—Judge Richardson, after finishing his academic course at the Charleston College, and going through the liberal curriculum of study in the office of the late lamented Henry Bailey, was admitted to the practice of the law, and, though quite a youth, soon made his way to distinction in his profession. He filled many important positions of trust and responsibility; was for many years a leading member of the Legislature, and, after the war, upon the reorganization of the judicial system, was elected a Judge of the District Court for the District of Berkeley.

We will not attempt an extended notice of the life and services of this distinguished gentleman at this time, as we doubt not it will be made at a future period in a manner worthy of the rare gifts and brilliant qualities for which he was so universally admired.

Judge Richardson was a native of Sumter District, though he resided for many years in Charleston, in the practice of his profession, and was at the time of his death in his 53d year.

Popular Reform.

Mr. Arthur J. Mundella, a member from Sheffield in the British House of Commons, delivered a lecture to the workmen of New York, prior to his departure for home, which has attracted no small attention, and should be in the possession of every thoughtful laborer in the land. Only a short time before, a lecture on a kindred subject was delivered to a similar audience by Mr. Tom Hughes, M. P., a man who, as the New York Tribune declares, is, by education and impulse, in sympathy with workingmen. But as Mr. Hughes was in no sense unjust to the employer, so Mr. Mundella, who is a large manufacturer, betrayed in his every word the earnest purpose with which he has worked for the elevation, the happiness, and the welfare of the laboring classes of his country. And it is worthy of remark that both gentlemen, from opposite points of view, unite in making the same declarations of the superiority to our own of the English system of Trades Unions, and in tendering the same advice regarding co-operation and arbitration to the manufacturers and artisans of the country.

Current Literature.

EDGAR'S STRUGGLE. A STORY OF TEMPTATION. McCarthy & Elyson, Richmond, Va. 1870.

This little work, an excellent one for Sunday-school scholars, is written, illustrated and published by Richmond, and is an encouraging evidence of Southern taste and skill. The publishers of Edgar's Struggle have other works in press, and it is their intention to get them up as well and as cheaply as can be done anywhere in the country.

ELEMENTS OF ASTRONOMY. By J. Norman Lockyer, F. R. S. A. American Edition. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1870.

The author believes, and rightly, that these elementary lessons in Astronomy, although intended in the main for use in schools, will be found useful to "children of a larger growth" who wish to keep up with the latest discoveries in one of the most fascinating of the sciences. It is intended by Professor Lockyer to give a connected view of the whole subject, rather than to discuss any particular parts of it, and to supply facts and ideas which may serve as a basis for subsequent study and discussion. Spectrum-analysis and its results are fully dealt with, and the American editor, besides extending the practical directions for finding interesting objects in the heavens on different evenings throughout the year, has appended celestial charts taken from Arago's Popular Astronomy. We cordially recommend Lockyer's Elements of Astronomy to the favorable consideration of schools and the public.

WITH FATE AGAINST HIM. By Amanda M. Douglas, author of "In Trust, Claudia," &c. New York: Sheldon & Co. 1870.

This novel is sufficiently stirring without being sensational, and has for its apparent purpose the development of the idea that when a man has learned "the grand secret of life," and comprehends its sacred duties, labor "is ennobled in his eyes for all time." The hero, Victor Harst, a model of "manly beauty," serves his time in a factory, where grim dust and coarse companions fill him with supreme disgust. His general priggishness causes him to be handsomely detested by his fellow-workmen, and the "lurking demon" in his soul prompts him to drop the shop, and carve out a new career in company with an itinerant violinist, in comparison with whom Paganini must have been a mystical dream, and the fitness of Victor's father, a worthy clergyman, upsets this pretty plan, and the young Apollo loathing his work the while, as one of nature's noblemen should—hammers and files until an unsuccessful strike, in which he is a leader, throws him out of employment, and bars against him the opening factory doors. By degrees he convinces himself that he cannot become a great painter, but a distant connection of his mother turns up in the nick of time, and his arrest for a murder of which, of course, he is innocent, brings to light the fact that he is not the son of John Harst, but of one Kirke Gilliat, the 1st of a proud, exclusive family, which had never been lacking "in grace, refinement or beauty." This Kirke Gilliat, in spite of his blue blood, is a precocious rascal, and, voracious to accept rank and wealth, (now that one is rightfully his own, and the other is supplied by the distant connection aforesaid,) marries the sweet young paragon whom he loves, comprehends the nobility of labor, and lays out for himself a plan of life in which are "towns to build, 'prosperity to evolve, human lives to watch, 'human souls to feed." This, it seems to us, destroys the didactical value of the whole story. Victor, as long as he is poor and humble in station, is fruitful, moody, selfish and ungrateful. Purification of spirit, and elevation of purpose, do not come to him as the crown of his sorrows and the fruit of his wrestling with self. The accidents of birth and relationship give him what, to be consistent, should have come from his own nature, victorious and triumphant, though fate was against him. And we undertake to say that a man of his temper—leaving Kirke Gilliat and the distant connection out of sight—would have gone rapidly to the bad, and ended his career in a jail or a mad-house. The story, however, as we remarked at the outset, is lively and agreeable, and the different characters, if only outlines, are carefully and pleasantly drawn. Miss Douglas never writes repetitively, and, without pretending to any striking novelty of thought or plot, is usually fresh and attractive.

A Monument to General Lee.

The generous ladies of Richmond, who were among the first to establish an association for keeping green the memory of the dead soldiers of the South, have now fully undertaken the pious care of erecting a monument in Richmond as a lasting memorial of the Great Captain of the Armies of the Confederacy. For this noble and sacred purpose, a collection will be taken up on Sunday next in every church in the South, as it is believed that this is the only way in which a voluntary and simultaneous offering can be made to him whom we love in death, as in life, with a clinging affection which will only pass away when Christian virtue and knightly honor are forgotten by this Southern people.

Judge Wright.

A Radical paper says that Judge J. J. Wright has definitely announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to the Supreme Bench.

About three months ago, or early in the Reform canvass, Judge Wright told a Charleston lawyer, as we are informed, that he felt how wholly unfitted he was for the high position which he held, and that he only became a candidate because it was a choice between himself and Whipper, and, in his own opinion, he (Wright) was the better man.

Judge Wright is a negro, and, if no other qualification be necessary for an election to the Supreme Bench, he should receive, upon the first ballot, the vote of every Radical in the General Assembly.
